

JHOELY TRIANA

FLAMENCO

Jhoely Triana is a Colombian-born flamenco dancer and choreographer based in Vancouver. With a diverse dance background, Jhoely trained at the Goh Ballet Academy, earned a Bachelor of Fine Arts in Contemporary Dance from Simon Fraser University, and honed her flamenco skills at Al Mozaico Flamenco and Rosario Flamenco.

Her work has been showcased at renowned events such as the Victoria Flamenco Festival, Vancouver International Flamenco Festival, Vines Festival, New Works Dance, and the Vancouver Fringe Festival, among others. Jhoely's choreography has also been featured at venues including The Dance Centre, Evergreen Cultural Centre, Knox Performance Centre, and during BC Culture Days.

After spending three months training in Spain, Jhoely returns with a renewed sense of passion and authenticity in her art. Her performances are marked by a deep connection to the audience, where vulnerability and emotional authenticity take center stage, creating an immersive and resonant experience.
